 Class-tested and coherent, this textbook teaches classical and web information retrieval, including web search and the related areas of text classification and text clustering from basic concepts. It gives an up-to-date treatment of all aspects of the design and implementation of systems for gathering, indexing, and searching documents; methods for evaluating systems; and an introduction to the use of machine learning methods on text collections. All the important ideas are explained using examples and figures, making it perfect for introductory courses in information retrieval for advanced undergraduates and graduate students in computer science. Based on feedback from extensive classroom experience, the book has been carefully structured in order to make teaching more natural and effective. Slides and additional exercises (with solutions for lecturers) are also available through the book's supporting website to help course instructors prepare their lectures.

Ambroise Paré, born in France around 1510, was chief surgeon to both Charles IX and Henri III. In one of the first attempts to explain birth defects, Paré produced On Monsters and Marvels, an illustrated encyclopedia of curiosities, of monstrous human and animal births, bizarre beasts, and natural phenomena. Janice Pallister's acclaimed English translation offers a glimpse of the natural world as seen by an extraordinary Renaissance natural philosopher.

Mediated Messages presents a collection of original writing exploring the role played by the media in the development of postmodern architecture in the 1970s and 80s. The book's twelve chapters and case-studies examine a range of contemporary periodicals and exhibitions to explore their role in the postmodern. This focus on mediation as a key feature of architectural post-modernism, and the recognition that post-modernism grew out of developments in the media, opens up the possibility of an important new account of post-modernism distinct from existing narratives. Accompanied by a contextualizing introduction, the essays are arranged across four thematic sections (covering: images; international postmodernisms; high and low culture; and postmodern architects as theorists) and present a range of case-studies with a genuinely international scope. Altogether, this work makes a substantial contribution to the historical account of architectural postmodernism, and will be of great interest to researchers in postmodernism as well as those examining the role of the media in architectural history.

Updated in its 13th edition, Joseph Devito's The Interpersonal Communication Book provides a highly interactive presentation of the theory, research, and skills of interpersonal communication with integrated discussions of diversity, ethics, workplace issues, face-to-face and computer-mediated communication and a new focus on the concept of choice in communication. This thirteenth edition presents a comprehensive view of the theory and research in interpersonal communication and, at the same time, guides readers to improve a wide range of interpersonal skills. The text emphasizes how to choose among those skills and make effective communication choices in a variety of personal, social, and workplace relationships

'Common and Uncommon Quotes: A Theory and History of Epigraphs' is a prolegomenon to the study of epigraphic paratextuality. Building on the work of Gerard Genette's paratextual studies, this volume contextualizes and traces the practice of epigraphy in Anglophone literary history, from the fifteenth to the early twentieth century. This study explores how epigraphs are used by author-functions as a hermeneutic for their text and to establish ethos with their audience, and how that paratextual relationship changed as publishing opportunities and literacy rates grew over four centuries. The first broad-reaching study of this kind, 'Common and Uncommon Quotes' seeks to understand how epigraphs work: through their privilege on the page, their appeal to conjured ideas of the past, and their calls to citizenship.

In Women, Men, and Spiritual Power, John Coakley explores male-authored narratives of the lives of Catherine of Siena, Hildegard of Bingen, Angela of Foligno, and six other female prophets or mystics of the late Middle Ages. His readings reveal the complex personal and literary relationships between these women and the clerics who wrote about them. Coakley's work also undermines simplistic characterizations of male control over women, offering an important contribution to medieval religious history. Coakley shows that these male-female relationships were marked by a fundamental tension between power and fascination: the priests and monks were supposed to hold authority over the women entrusted to their care, but they often switched roles, as the men became captivated with the women's spiritual gifts. In narratives of such women, the male authors reflect directly on the relationship between the women's powers and their own. Coakley argues that they viewed these relationships as gendered partnerships that brought together female mystical power and male ecclesiastical authority without placing one above the other. Women, Men, and Spiritual Power chronicles a wide-ranging experiment in the balance of formal and informal powers, in which it was assumed to be thoroughly imaginable for both sorts of authority, in their distinctly gendered terms, to coexist and build on each other. The men's writings reflect an extended moment in western Christianity when clerics had enough confidence in their authority to actually question its limits. After about 1400, however, clerics underwent a crisis of confidence, and such a questioning of institutional power was no longer considered safe. Instead of seeing women as partners, their revelatory powers began to be viewed as evidence of witchcraft. The US dollar is the world's indispensable currency. The dollar's preeminent status gives the United States enormous coercive powers which it flexes in the form of financial sanctions to punish its adversaries. Over the last twenty years, Washington has relied on financial sanctions with greater and greater frequency. Bucking the Buck argues that the more the United States wields the dollar as a weapon of foreign policy, the more its adversaries will move their international economic activities into other currencies to avoid Washington's coercive reach. Through a combination of case studies and statistical analysis, the book establishes a relationship between US financial sanctions and the rise of "anti-dollar" policies, which are designed to reduce an economy's reliance on the US currency. Though some anti-dollar policies fail to achieve this goal, McDowell's analysis indicates that in many cases they are successful. Patterns of "de-dollarization" following sanctions are clear. In some cases, the anticipation of future sanctions may provoke similar policy measures. Though McDowell does not conclude that sanctions threaten the dollar's status as the world's key currency, the potential consequences of sanctions overuse remain important. Most notably, the use of sanctions may, over time, weaken their effectiveness as US adversaries develop systems and methods to minimize costs associated with such measures. If the United States wishes to preserve the potency of financial sanctions and protect the dollar's dominant position in the world economy, Bucking the Buck argues that Washington's approach to sanctions use should become more discerning.

Much has been written in recent years about the Middle East. At the same time, no other region has been as misunderstood, nor framed in so many clichés and mistakenly-held beliefs. In this much-needed exposé Fred Halliday selects one hundred of the most commonly misconstrued 'facts' - in the political, cultural, social and historical spheres - and illuminates each case without compromising its underlying complexities. The Israel-Palestine crisis, the Iran-Iraq war, the US-led Gulf incursions, the Afghan-Soviet conflict and other significant milestones in modern Middle East history come under scrutiny here, with conclusions that will surprise and enlighten many for going so persuasively against the grain. 'A writer of true calibre.' Independent 'Fred Halliday's grasp of the Middle East makes him an invaluable source of readable and authoritative material on the main issues.' Irish Times 'Fascinating reading ... Challenging proverbial 'wisdom', pat answers and politically motivated lies, he addresses 100 common misconceptions about the Middle East and how the region figures into US and European foreign policy.' INSPIRING MOVIE QUOTES by D.L. KNIGHT contains figures with inspiring quotes from over 200 movies from 1982 to 2020. Enjoy the quotes and be inspired! The author offers 100% of his royalties to Maria, a victim of Portuguese (in)justice. According to Mahatma Gandhi, we cannot accept injustice from anyone and we must make the injustice visible. A study from Ernst & Young places Portugal as one of the most corrupted nations in the world. In Portugal, if you are poor and/or disabled, you have no legal rights, and that includes no legal rights to your own property. Maria is a victim of Portuguese (in)justice. Maria cannot live alone in her home permanently because of her poor health. Every time Maria's health allows her to go home, Maria finds a car parked in her private clearly identified parking space. When Maria called a tow truck, towing away the car parked on her private parking space was refused because, in Portugal, cars can only be towed away by tow trucks with the permission of their owners. When Maria called the police, towing away the car parked on her private parking space was likewise refused because, in Portugal, cars can only be towed away by the police from public spaces. When Maria demanded justice in a Portuguese court of (out)law, the perpetrators went unpunished and Maria was punished to pay about 10.000 to the court of (out)law, the perpetrators and the lawyers in fines and (out)law costs. Because Maria is not healthy and wealthy, Portuguese (in)justice states clearly that her property can be used by whoever wants it whenever wants it without any punishment except hers for daring to demand the exclusive use of her own property while sitting on a wheelchair or being paralyzed in a bed. Portuguese (in)justice punished Maria for daring to fight for her property rights while not being healthy and wealthy. Maria survives with less than 200 a month and if Maria does not find the equivalent of 5.000% her income, Portuguese (in)justice takes her home away, a tiny studio flat bought after decades of hard work that damaged her back permanently. An (in)justice that does not allow Maria the right of the exclusive right of her private parking space, will not hesitate to take her home away. If you are against corruption/injustice, please help Maria and do not visit Portugal or buy any Portuguese products. This book is not dedicated to the judges who did not punish the perpetrators who used Maria's private clearly identified property but punished her for legally complaining about her property being used without her permission: António Carlos Gonçalves Carneiro da Silva (case number 14945/16.28PRT) and Maria da Luz Teles Meneses de Seabra (case number 11964/175T8PRT). This book is not dedicated to the owners of the cars who abusively parked on Maria's parking space without her permission and without any punishment: Instituto Orff do Porto - Associação Cultural (case number 11964/175T8PRT and car registration number 79-03-QA) and Torres & Condesso, Lda. (case number 14945/16.28PRT and car registration number 53-91-UV). This book is not dedicated to the public prosecutor Maria Clara Ferreira da Silva Oliveira (case number 14930/17.7T9PRT) who did not prosecute the (un)human being who told in a court of (out)law that he offers Maria's private parking space to friends whenever FC Porto plays at home (José Carlos de Sousa Tavares). Enjoy the quotes, be inspired and make Portuguese injustice worldwide visible!
