Transportation Needs and Programs

Summary Createspace Independent Publishing Platform

Presents state of the practice information about the various actions transit agencies (and other employers) have taken to help ensure the availability of quality employees in an increasingly competitive employment environment. It focuses on the practices and policies transit agencies have put in place to help minimize absenteeism at their agencies, from which other agencies may find useful applications.

Changing Roles and Practices of Bus

Field Supervisors National Learning Corporation

Assesses the level of investment required to bring all of our nation's public transportation (transit) systems into a state of good repair. While the seven agencies included in the 2009 Rail Modernization Study are responsible for a majority of the nation's transit assets, the Study's findings emphasize the need for a more comprehensive understanding of transit reinvestment needs. This 2010 National State of Good Repair Assessment evaluates the level of investment required to bring all U.S. transit assets to a state of good repair. The current national SGR backlog is about $77.7 billion. An annual average of $14.4 billion in normal replacement expenditures would be required to keep that backlog from getting larger. This manual provides direction for the preparation of noise and vibration sections of environmental documents for mass transportation projects. The manual has been developed in the interest of promoting quality and uniformity in assessments. It is expected to be used by people associated with or affected by the urban transit industry, including Federal Transit Administration (FTA) staff, grant applicants, consultants and the general public. Each of these groups has an interest in noise/vibration assessment, but not all have the need for all the details of the process. Consequently, this manual has been prepared to serve readers with varying levels of technical background and interests. It sets forth the basic concepts, methods and procedures for documenting the extent and severity of noise impacts from transit projects.

MTA Bus Operator Exam for New York City National Learning Corporation This report provides guidance to transit agency managers on whether to purchase a driving simulator and, if so, what kind. Also, this document provides guidance on how to use simulation effectively to improve bus operator training and safety. Information was obtained from a literature search, surveys, and site visits.

Bus Operator, Conductor Arco Provides scientifically validated design guidelines that ergonomically accommodate operators from the 5th percentile female to the 95th percentile male population. The design guidelines address all aspects of the bus operator workstation including the seat, steering assembly, pedals, instrument panels, farebox, and other equipment. New York City Bus Operator Exam Review Guide Transportation Research Board

This report documents the results of an investigation into the feasibility of developing a simulator for the training of bus operators. Current transit training programs were examined, and training needs identified with the assistance of an advisory committee from the transit industry. Features required of a driving simulator to meet those training needs were identified, and the cost of implementing and operating such a simulator were assessed. Due to the high costs of simulators with the required features, it appears that no cost benefit would accrue with the use of such a simulator. No training time savings or safety benefits could be documented to justify the use of a driving simulator for bus operator training.
